

Lost your job? Income reduced? Here's how to make your money go further.

If you've lost your job or your income is reduced:

- 1 You need a budget (use us or don't, but you should have one in some form). A budget will show you how long your money will last. This helps you decide what levers to pull (and how hard to pull them).
- 2 List out monthly expenses.
 - Your credit card statement can help jog your memory
 - Don't forget non-monthly bills like car insurance
 - Include the ballpark monthly cost of each one
- 3 Sort your budget by needs and wants.
 - Needs go at the top; wants go at the bottom
 - List in order of bill due date or importance
- 4 Budget as far as your money will go.
 - Don't budget any money you don't have yet (even if you're getting paid tomorrow)
 - Evaluate how far your money goes: two weeks? Two months?
- 5 Pull levers to stretch your money.
 - Trim your expenses
 - Negotiate set rates down
 - Bring in more income
- 6 Let the budget guide your way.

Levers to pull to stretch your money:

Cut costs:

- 1 Are you eligible for unemployment benefits? If so, file!

Reduce housing expenses. Contact your landlord/mortgage provider and ask for options for deferment or delayed payment.
- 2 Reduce utilities and recurring essentials.
 - Contact your utility provider, internet provider, and phone provider
 - Explain your hardship; ask about options for reducing costs
- 3 Reduce transportation costs
 - If you have an auto loan, contact your service provider and ask about deferment or payment options
 - Can you go down to one car if you have two? Can you cancel your bus pass?
- 4 Contact your student loan provider.
 - Federal student loans have been set to 0% interest for 60 days starting March 13, 2020
 - You can request deferment of payment or look into income-based repayment options to reduce payments
- 5 Negotiate your interest rates. Contact your credit card company and ask for a lower interest rate. Will they give you 0% for 6 months? Maybe they'll say no, but maybe they'll give you 5-10% instead of 18%. Use your budget as a bargaining tool; you now know what you can and cannot afford.

Trim your budget:

- Look hard at each expense. Do you absolutely need it?
- Cancel subscriptions
 - Share streaming services
 - Cut grocery costs
 - Enact zero-spend days
 - Reduce amounts you have set aside for non-essentials
